

Bring It on Ulster County: Let the Food Fight Begin!

Donate Packaged and Canned Goods at the Milton Library

The Sarah Hull Hallock Free Library joins forces with libraries across New York for The Great Give Back – a statewide library initiative to connect volunteers and community. On September 1, the Milton Library launches a food drive to collect unexpired, undamaged, packaged and canned goods in an effort to fight local food insecurity.

It's all part of the Ulster County Library Association Food Fight that takes place from September 1 through October 16. Several of the libraries in Ulster County are having good clean fun competing against each other to stockpile the largest food donation by October 16. Everyone's a winner, when each library donates its haul to a local pantry. Join in our fight against food insecurity: drop your donations off at the library during open hours.
