

Tea, Talks and Workshops Series Resumes in Fall, Thanks to ALA Grant

Milton Library hosts its Tea, Talks and Workshops Series at the pavilion in the Cluett Schantz Memorial Park, on four Thursdays at 3:00 p.m. The hands-on afternoon sessions are for adults, and workshops are underwritten by a grant from the American Library Association: Libraries Transforming Communities, with a “focus on small and rural communities.” Come for the workshop, led by instructor Stephanie Barley; then stay for the company and conversation:

September 30: Mason Jar Floral Arrangements

October 7: Bath Salts and Sugar Rubs

October 14: Fancy Pumpkin Painting

October 21: Seasonal Wreaths

These small outdoor workshops follow safety protocols. Future talks and presentations are planned for indoor meetings in 2022. Adults can reserve their spot at the pavilion for any one (or all) of the workshops, by calling the Sarah Hall Hallock Free Library: 845-795-2200.
